

Baby Room

You and your baby will be spending lots of time together in the nursery, so outfit it with colors you love, smart-design furniture and comfortable touches. Daytime essentials include a soft changing station, a well-sized dresser plus organizer baskets to keep the room neat, a glider for feeding and cuddling, and a baby monitor so you can keep an ear on your little one while you rest or do chores. At night, tuck your babe into the crib with soft, snuggly and completely dreamy bedding.

Baby Wear

It's your first game with your baby: Playing dress-up. Make sure your layette includes lots of super-soft layers, then start teaching that baby all about dressing in style. You'll want several body suits—they help keep diapers in place plus protect a wiggly baby's tummy from the cold—and from there, layer on sweet gowns, colorful outfits and cozy socks and booties. Don't forget hooded blankets for stress-soothing swaddling and cooler nights!

Must-Haves

Baby Gear

Your baby will be on the go from day one. Travel safe, sound and stylish with smart picks that get you from here to there with ease. Your most important purchase will be a safe, well-designed car seat for that ride home from the hospital. Then move on to a stroller for errands and exercise plus a carrier that holds your little one close. On the home front, you'll need a high chair and a play yard before you know it!

Baby Toys

With a new baby, every day is a discovery. Add the right toy in the mix, and watch your little one learn a smile a minute. First on the play agenda: Building muscles and motor skills during tummy time and floor time with stimulating activity mats. As your baby grows, add light infant toys that can be easily grasped and lifted, then interactive toys with finger-fascinating textures. The fun has just begun.
